Suspicious Powers in Dangerous Game of "Follow Leader"

2 Heavy French Cruisers,
4 Destroyers Keep Eye
on Germans

"TO PLAY IT ALONE"

Germany Determined to Maintain Spanish Patrol
All Her Own

PARIS, France.—(P)—A French warship fleet led by two heavy cruisers anchored Thursday at Bone, Algeria, due south of Italy's Mediterranean island of Sardinia, after secret night maneuvers.

Thus France kept pace with heavy German warship movements in waters near Spain.

The French ships, two heavy cruisers, four destroyers and five submarines, are units of the Mediterranean squadron.

Return German Wounded

GIBRALTAR.—(P)—The German cruiser Koln arrived at Gibraltar Thursday to return to Germany 17 sailors wounded when Spanish government planes bombed the German pocket battleship Deutschland.

The bodies of 31 seamen killed in the May 29th bombardment had already been taken back to Germany.

German Ships to Spain

BERLIN, Germany.—(P)—Reichsfuhrer Adolf Hitler demonstrated his determination Wednesday night to maintain German naval forces in Spanish waters by ordering the battleship Graf Spee to proceed at once to Spain.

The warship sailed shortly after the German cabinet had issued a statement saying the government had decided "to take into its own hands" protection of its interests and ships "against Bolshevik firebrands in Valencia" and would employ whatever methods best calculated to "discourage these criminals from similar attacks in the future."

The statement also expressed gratification that Italy was in accord with such a position.

Germany and Italy recalled warships from the international patrol to keep arms and men from reaching Spain after Great Britain and France refused to agree to a naval display off the coast of Valencia to warn the Spanish government against attacks on patrol ships.

'Collided' With Submarine

The statement expressed indignation of the Nazis at inability or unwillingness of France and Britain to understand German feelings over the alleged Spanish government submarine attempts to torpedo the German cruiser Leipzig off the Algerian coast June 15 and 18.

The statement said that the Leipzig "collided with the Red submarine" after the submarine had fired its last torpedo. Earlier the government had said it was not clear whether the cruiser had been sideswiped by an unexploded torpedo or the superstructure of a submarine.

Dispatch of the Graf Spee, coming after a day-long deliberation of Germany's future policy toward Spain, was interpreted by some to mean that Germany will pursue a more vigorous course than before, despite advice of some of Hitler's counselors that he risk no more ships in Spanish waters.

It was learned that Germany has 18 warships in Spanish waters and also a number of "covert fishing vessels" carrying navy crews. The warships include the Admiral von Scheer, four modern cruisers, the Nürnberg, Leipzig, Köln and Karlsruhe; nine torpedo boats, belonging to the second, third and fourth flotillas; four 500-ton submarines, each armed with one four-inch cannon, one anti-aircraft machine gun and five torpedo tubes.

"Nuisance" Taxes Are Extended Two Years

WASHINGTON.—(P)—The senate voted Thursday to extend the so-called nuisance taxes and the three-cent postage rate for two years instead of one.

Court Debate Is to Begin Next Week

It May Rival 9-Month Discussion of League of Nations

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Tension increased on Capitol Hill Wednesday night after Democratic Leader Robinson of Arkansas announced that debate on the Roosevelt court bill probably will begin next week. Opposition leaders said they had warned Robinson that the bill, or any compromise increasing size of the supreme court, would encounter an indefinite filibuster.

The Democratic leader refused to discuss legislative prospects for the bill, or progress of compromise negotiations. He merely told newspapermen: "It is quite probable the court bill will be brought forward the latter part of next week."

Some legislators have predicted the fight will rival the historic nine-month debate on the League of Nations.

It is almost five months since President Roosevelt surprised congress with his message asking authority to name a new justice to the Supreme Court for every justice past 70 who declined to retire.

Since then, a furious nationwide debate has raged almost continuously. Democratic ranks in the senate have been split as they have not been split since the party took control of congress in 1933. Talk of a permanent realignment of parties has resulted.

Announcement of conference this week-end on Jefferson Island, in Chesapeake Bay, between the president and aroused widespread speculation, being variously interpreted as a move to strengthen the pro-court bill line-up; to heal the breach in the party; or to prepare for a showdown between those who are willing to follow the president's leadership and those who are not.

Since the bill was reported to the senate adversely by its Judiciary committee more than a month ago, administration leaders have begun compromise negotiations, but they have been flatly rejected by opposition leaders. The latter have taken the almost unprecedented step of setting up a formal organization, headed by Senator Wheeler (Dem., Mont.) to fight any compromise.

L. & A's Purchase Case Is Recessed

I. C. C. Puts Off Rock Island Sale Hearing
Until July 9

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Interstate Commerce Commissioner Claude R. Porter recessed Thursday until July 9 the hearing on the Louisiana & Arkansas railway's application for authority to purchase the Rock Island, Arkansas & Louisiana line.

The recess was called after attorneys for groups opposing the application had asked time to study the L. & A. exhibits filed in support of the proposed consolidation.

Governor Certain to Attend Visiting Day at Farm Here

Bailey Will Arrive at Experiment Station at 10
a. m. Friday

TO SPEAK AT 11:30

Six Hope Organizations to Serve Luncheon—String
Bands to Play

The appearance of Governor Carl E. Bailey as the principal speaker at the University of Arkansas Fruit & Truck Branch Experiment Station Visiting Day program Friday was assured Thursday, according to G. W. Ware, increasing director in charge of the station.

Mr. Ware made the announcement after a telephone conversation with the governor's office Thursday morning. Governor Bailey will arrive at the station by automobile about 10 a. m. He will be conducted on a tour of the station, and then will address the crowd at 11:30 a. m.

J. F. Porter, president of the Tennessee Farm Bureau, and Mrs. Edwin Bevins, national chairman of the Committee on Urban-Rural Co-operation, will be the principal speakers during the afternoon session.

Wayne E. England, Hempstead county Red Cross chairman, said Thursday that a Red Cross first-aid station would be maintained at the station farm Friday with Mrs. Flora Cotton Slater, county nurse, in charge.

Six Hope organizations will serve luncheon to the crowd at noon while two string bands furnish music. A crowd of more than 3,000 persons is expected.

Five Plants Close in Union Quarrel

Close Despite CIO's Abandoning of General
Strike Threat

WARREN, Ohio.—(P)—Five manufacturers closed their plants in Warren and Niles Thursday after the CIO had notified its unions to abandon plans for a general sympathy strike.

Officials of the Brainerd Steel company, who declined to be quoted by name, said their contract with the CIO was "no good."

They denied that there was a lock-out at their plant and said operations were curtailed partly due to the lack of orders.

J. C. Manternach, president of the American Welding & Manufacturing Co., said his plant was shut down until "we find out what the union is going to do."

The CIO unions called strikes in many Warren plants Wednesday in a move for a projected general labor holiday as a protest against a court injunction limiting picketing at the Republic Steel plant in Warren.

Sailors Get Chapel

SAN FRANCISCO.—(P)—A "Chapel of the Apostleship of the Sea" has just been dedicated here, intended to form a spiritual sanctuary for sailors away from their home port. The plan was conceived by Archbishop John J. Mitty, who converted an existing church into the maritime chapel.

6 Hope Scouts to Washington, D. C., for U. S. Jamboree

Scouts Will Witness Fireworks From Battleship in Potomac

Six Boy Scouts of Hope are en route to Washington, D. C., to attend the National Scout Jamboree opening in the national capital at noon Saturday for a 10-day encampment.

The Hope group, included in the Tex-Ark council district which comprises southwest Arkansas, will be in charge of Scoutmaster McCowan of DeQueen and McCowan's assistant, Rufus Herndon, Jr., of Hope. It was estimated that 50 Scouts would attend from the district.

The Hope Group

Robert Jewell, Eagle scout, will be patrol leader of the Hope group, assisted by Pershing Floyd, Life scout. Other Hope scouts attending will be Thomas Kinser, Jr., and E. P. Young, Jr., Life scouts; Billy Orton, Eagle scout, and Edward Lester, Eagle and Palm scout.

At Washington the Tex-Ark council district will be joined by other scouts from 48 states in the union and from several European countries. One of the features of the national jamboree will be the witnessing of the gigantic fireworks display from a battleship in the Potomac river the night of July 5.

To End Financial Drive

T. S. Cornelius, chairman of the financial drive to aid Boy Scouts in Hempstead county, said Thursday that the campaign for funds will be resumed in Hope Friday morning.

The quota is $750. Of that amount approximately $300 has been raised. Committees have been appointed to canvass sections of the downtown area Friday.

20 Rich Citizens Face Tax Probers

Mellon, DuPont, Raskob,
Lamont, Sloan Head
"Suspect" List

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Two score names of persons high in business and financial fields were listed by Treasury officials Thursday in the senate-house inquiry into tax evasion and avoidance.

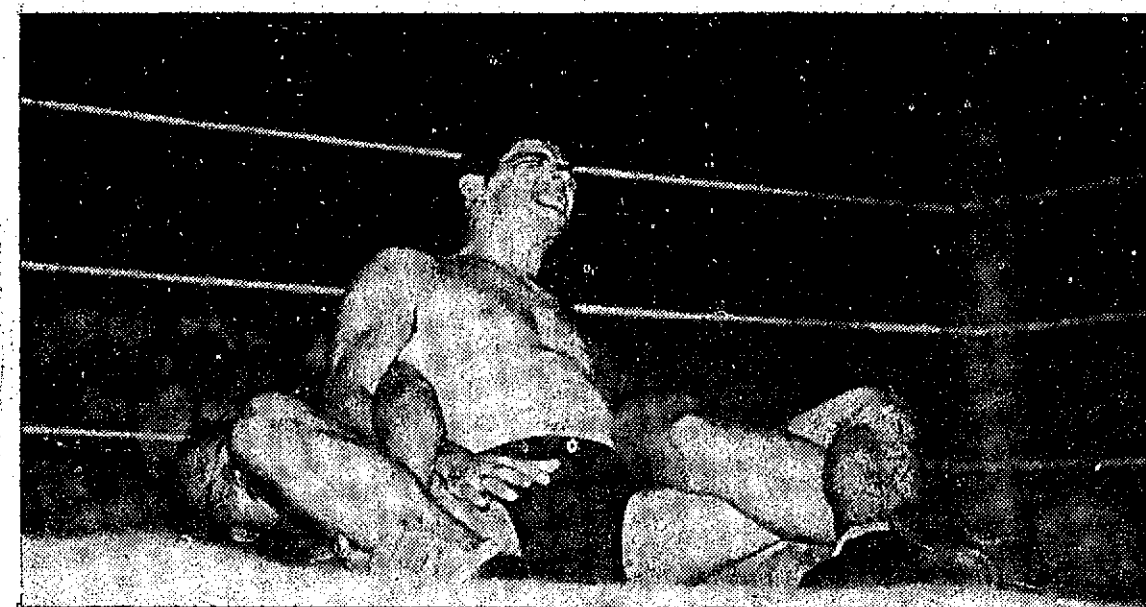

The list included:
Andrew Mellon, Pierre duPont, John J. Raskob, Thomas W. Lamont, Alfred Sloan, Jr., and Mrs. Ethel duPont.

The names were listed in tables given the congressional investigating committee by Guy T. Helvering, internal revenue commissioner, as the committee studied what Helvering termed "the device of personal holding companies" to reduce tax payments.

The Grunt-and-Groan Business Returns to Hope as a Red-Hot Summer Diversion

—Photos by Hope Star

At the second show of the season, last Tuesday night, The Star "shot" these scenes in the South Walnut stadium where Promoter Bert Mauldin reopened the wrestling business a week ago. On Tuesday night's card Can Cadey, U. S. A., threw Chinn Lee of Shanghai, China, in two out of three falls. In the top picture the Chinaman has a leg-split on Cadey—and the American is registering 49 degrees of white-man agony.

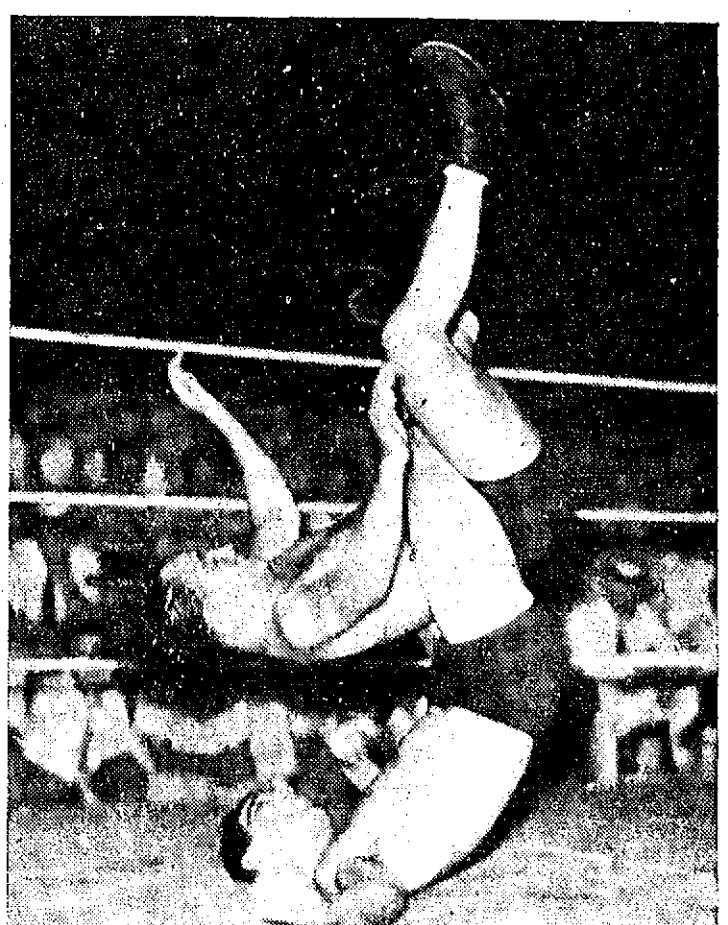

Here the tide has turned: The Chinaman, who in the first picture was underneath and winning, now is on top and losing (funny game, this wrestling business). Cadey, having registered agony long enough, has risen from his early hot-seat, grabbed the Chinaman by the chin and one leg, and is heaving him in mid-air for a body-slam.

Amelia Earhart Makes Brief Hop in Orient

BATAVIA, Java.—(P)—Amelia Earhart flew Thursday from nearby Bandoeng to Sourabaya, Java, en route to Kupang, Timor island, on her flight around the world.

She planned to remain at Sourabaya until Friday.

Chinn Lee is still in a bad way. Here, Cadey, braced on the floor, has a leg-lock on the Chinaman and is hurling him skyward preparatory to slamming him hard on the canvas floor.

"Got a Chance to Beat Rap," Says Prisoner,
Looking at Jury

BULLETIN

LONOKE, Ark.—(P)—The state rested its case at 2:35 p. m. Thursday in the murder trial of "Crime Tourist" Lester Brockelhurst, after asking the death penalty for the 23-year-old former Galesburg, Ill., Sunday school teacher for the hitch-hike slaying of Victor A. Gates, Little Rock planter.

Bernice Felton, 18, of Rockford, Ill., Brockelhurst's sweetheart, was not called to the stand.

LONOKE, Ark.—(P)—Lester Brockelhurst, 23, former Galesburg, Ill., Sunday school teacher, declared Thursday "I'm going to fight for my life every step of the way," as the circuit court jury was completed to try him for the hitch-hike slaying of Victor Gates, Little Rock.

"I think I've got a slim chance to beat this rap," he asserted, "but if I get the electric chair I can take it."

The jury, which Brockelhurst said "looks like a pretty intelligent bunch to me," was completed at 10:30 a. m. and included seven farmers, one school teacher, two merchants, an auto salesman and a justice of the peace.

The defense rejected 12 prospective jurors and the state six before filling the box.

In his opening statement, Deputy Prosecutor Joe Mellon said Brockelhurst had admitted slayings in Arkansas, Illinois and Texas.

The defense said it would attempt to prove Brockelhurst was insane.

Expect Hugo Crowd

LONOKE, Ark.—With the largest crowd that ever attended a trial in Lonoke county history excepted, officials have completed arrangements for the trial Thursday of Lester W. Brockelhurst, Jr., 23, alleged slayer of Victor A. Gates of Little Rock and Lonoke.

Bernice Felton, 18, charged with accessory to murder in connection with Mr. Gates' death, is scheduled to go to trial Friday.

Circuit Judge W. J. Waggoner said the case would be tried as rapidly as possible. He said that overcrowding in the courtroom will not be tolerated. Loud speakers will be installed in the courtroom, but will not be placed outside the courthouse.

15 Reporters Attend

Telegraph lines have been installed in the office of the court reporter to enable newspaper men to send reports on the trial rapidly. Arrangements have been made to accommodate 15 reporters, and the judge's desk has been lowered. The witness chair has been moved nearer the judge's bench to allow the jurors to better hear the testimony.

The county WPA sewing room has been moved and at least 300 spectators will be able to sit in the balcony of the courtroom. Lonoke cafes are prepared to feed one of the largest crowds in history of the town.

Judge Waggoner instructed Sheriff Troy Carroll to rope off an area in the courtroom so that prospective jurors will not be able to hear statements made by the audience. Veniemen excused from jury duty will be requested to leave the courtroom to prevent them from hearing testimony and disqualifying themselves for service in the trial of Miss Felton.

No demonstrations or threats have been made against Brockelhurst or Miss Felton, Judge Waggoner said.

Visited By Their Parents

Parents of both the boy and the girl visited them here Wednesday but they did not meet. There was a report that they deliberately avoided each other. The report said that relations between the two families have become somewhat strained since it was announced that Bernice will testify against her former lover.

The girl was taken from her cell on the fourth floor of the courthouse to the sheriff's office where the family spent an hour and a half. Little emotion was displayed at the meeting. Members of the family present were Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Felton, Bernice's parents; Leslie Felton, her brother; Mary Louise, her baby sister; Mrs. William Cagner of San Francisco, Cal., an aunt, and Irving Mead of Rockford, Ill.

Brockelhurst's parents visited their son in the jail. They will be here Thursday.

CHAPTER I

Nina Blake saw him first—a flash of color through the taxicab window. His sombrero was white and his serape was crimson; both were etched with gold. His pants were purple velvet, his shirt green. He leaned with artistic indolence against the hotel wall.

"Well! If there isn't Don Pedro or somebody himself! Snap out, Slew, and behold the scenery!" Nina sat up straight and started. It took a lot to interest Nina.

"Slew" was a sister name for Stuart Blake—Stuart Alfred Blake, Jr. He didn't like it, but he couldn't do a thing about it. Nobody could do anything about Nina. He stepped from the cab and assisted his father and sister to alight.

"Uhhh!" whispered the father, appreciatively. "Have to get me an outfit like that, eh, Nina? The old Southwest!"

Stuart answered, "Too swanky for you, Dad. I'll wear it. I know what to do when the seniorities smile! Ta-tum, tata-ta!"

But Nina snapped him up.

"I'll testify you do! Glide into a tango, and try to kiss her in the first chorus. And some black-eyed lover like our friend here will dag you with his dagger! Listen, sweet brother—if you can weather my sarcasm—this is Arizona, not Chicago. Even I don't know how to act, out here."

"Well I do!"

"Well you don't, you've never been west of Des Moines in your life! You think this is—"

Stuart Alfred Blake, Sr., interrupted them, moving with them meanwhile to the hotel clerk's counted. He roared a little.

"Stop that, you two! Arguing like school kids, at your age—good day, sir, I want a comfortable suite for a man with two babies."

"Babies, sir?" The clerk was deferential.

"Ya, these two! Twenty-five and twenty-two. Years, not months!"

You could set Hotel Westward Ho down on one of Chicago's main streets, turn around twice, and have to call a policeman to help you find it.

Nina mentioned as much, following an after-breakfast tour; but her father informed her that hotels, and people, are different in Phoenix, Arizona. This was "out West," said he. Nina sighed.

The hotel didn't matter anyway. They were heading for the hills—"going western"—and the wilder the dude ranch the better. They had been intrigued by frequent news items about Superstition Mountain, 40 miles from Phoenix.

"They keep talking about excitement up there—might be interesting," Mr. Blake, Sr., had admitted.

"Probably hokum, but it'll be fun," Stuart agreed.

"Murders aren't hokum, son. Two or three unsolved, the papers say. People do queer things hunting for treasure."

Treasure! That's right, there was gold in Superstition, or supposed to be. A lost mine, or something. Stuart didn't need gold; he would inherit plenty of money. But hid—

Man at Wheel Holds Traffic Problem Key

DON'T cross your legs when you are riding with a reckless auto driver. This is the advice recently given by Dr. Robert Funston, professor of surgery at the University of Virginia. And although this may not seem to have much relation to the general topic of traffic safety, the professor had good reason to mention it. He has found that passengers who plant the feet apart on the floorboard and lean well back in the seat are less subject to leg and hip injuries in a crash.

Out at Iowa State College, practical research has shown that slight defects of vision may cause serious traffic accidents. Other scientists contribute the information that color blindness causes even conscientious drivers to run through red lights and cause costly collisions.

THESE interesting items do not prove that science alone has the answer to our enormous traffic problem. There is no one thing that can ever control a transportation mechanism which kills 36,000 and injures more than a million persons in the United States every year. But they do indicate that we are improving our teamwork and are adding to the sum total of knowledge needed to banish the traffic evil.

Other inklings that we are absorbing workable ideas in traffic accident prevention are provided by the national safety education program in schools. It has been proved possible, through classroom teaching, to raise the average age of pedestrians killed or hurt in traffic from the school child level to above the 50-year-old level within 12 months' time. This feat is marred only by the fact that no way has yet been devised to bring adults into classrooms for daily safety lessons.

In the engineering field, great strides have been made. A few years ago a red pin on a map was considered enough for a traffic mishap. Now, thanks largely to Franklin M. Kreml and his pioneer work in Evanston, Ill., officials may preserve the minutest evidence of an accident. These thorough records enable experts to eliminate street and road hazards, fix responsibility for the cash, obtain a higher percentage of convictions, and give the blameless driver a better deal in court.

SCORES of other ideas are being tried. Overpass crossings, high level sidewalks, road straightening and leveling, better lighting, improvements in tires and car equipment all are worthwhile trends toward the common goal.

But mechanical ingenuity never will replace personal judgment, and the issue of life or death on the road always will lie principally in the hands of the man at the wheel.

Summer, bringing its glut of cars on the streets and highways, swings this problem into sharp focus and emphasizes the responsibility of individual drivers and pedestrians. It is a good time to decide whether we shall restrict the auto to its proper sphere in transportation, or allow it to grow on up as a murderous juggernaut.

How Russia Sees Us

AN indirect but revealing view of the way American prosperity and industrial progress look to people overseas is provided by the recent announcement of the Soviet Union's third five-year plan.

This plan, calling for a great increase in the Russian laborer's productivity, is designed to bring Russia up to the American standard of production. The Soviet planners declare that Russia already leads other European nations, but admit that it has not yet caught up with America.

"Europe can teach us little more; America can teach us much," says Anastos Mikoyan, commissar of the food industry.

It is interesting, somehow, to see that in the very stronghold of capitalism's enemies, America's world leadership in capitalistic progress is taken for granted.

Hardening of Arteries Serious When It Affects Vital Organs of the Body

(No. 248)

One of the degenerative diseases of advanced years is called arteriosclerosis or hardening of the arteries. It probably is not a disease in itself, but a change in the blood vessels usually associated with long continued intoxication and infections, old age and high blood pressure.

There seems to be some argument about high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries, as in the question of which came first, the hen or the egg.

Sir William Osler felt that the changes which take place in the blood vessels are controlled by the heredity of the person concerned or, in other words, that the quality of the tubing with which one is born is the essential factor in the occurrence and severity of hardening of the arteries.

Frequently this condition is associated with gout, diabetes or Bright's disease and there are some who feel that diet is an essential factor.

Physicians used to argue that the use of tea, coffee, tobacco and alcohol was a primary factor, but nowadays it is not considered to be established. There seems to be no evidence that there is more arteriosclerosis among those who use alcohol and tobacco than among those who do not.

The chief feature of this disease is the loss of elastic tissue in the walls of the blood vessels so that they become hard, rigid and tortuous. This naturally interferes seriously with the circulation of the blood and is usually associated with a rise in the blood pressure.

The symptoms depend on the extent to which the circulation of the blood is interfered with. While the conduction may affect all of the tissues of the body, it becomes especially serious when it interferes with the circulation of a vital organ such as the brain, the kidney or the heart.

Hardening of the arteries comes on insidiously and seldom is discovered by some serious symptoms associated with the organs that have been mentioned.

The individual whose circulation is beginning to fail finds that he gets tired easily and cannot concentrate as well as he used to. His memory fails, particularly for recent events. He is likely to become emotionally unstable.

Cramps in the muscles occur after exercise; the skin becomes dry, thin and wrinkled and the thickened, twisted, hardened arteries may frequently be seen, particularly on the temples and skull of men who have lost their hair.

Obviously, there may be headaches and dizziness associated with the disturbances of circulation in the brain.

Your Children
By Olive Roberts Barton

Vacation Accentuates Shortage of Safe Playgrounds

Playtime—therefore playground time, where is your child going to get his exercise and sun, while school's out? On the sidewalk? Or in the yard? In a nearby work or community center? It will have to be one of these, unless you live in the country, or belong to the fortunate clans who can pull out of the city for the summer to cool mountain or breezy shore.

There is nothing again the sidewalk as the stage for the child's activities, if it is on a safe quiet street, preferably with a dead-end and a minimum of traffic. But the trouble is that there are so few really safe streets now. Even the most careful child, in the excitement of play, will run after his ball, or rush to salvage a marble from the opposite curb. The parked car is a double menace, as more children are killed by stepping out from behind cars into the roadway, than are run down in the open.

New Communities Are Better

The community yard, where parents throw their gardens together to make one big arena for the children in the block to play, is becoming more popular by the hour. New city planning, with houses built backs toward encircling streets, and facing a central park with a specially planned playground, is also gaining in popularity so fast, that it is predicted all homes of the future will turn a cold shoulder to the pavements.

Begun in England as an experiment, the contagion is breaking out like a rash in the United States. Subway egresses under the streets keep the children doubly safe to and from school.

However, we have today's problem still, and will have it for years to come. There are not enough playgrounds, yet, by any means, in most of our cities. There are more, yes, but there are more cras too, and the invasion has reached the hitherto "safe" districts with a vengeance.

I go back to my old hobby, that communities are responsible for the lives of children, when certain dangers are beyond the power of the family to control. The motor car menace should be handled like an epidemic, in which case public funds are cheerfully used to protect life. Therefore, I believe that civic playgrounds, and many more of them, are the great need today. It is so in some places, but in others playground societies depending upon private funds have just about reached their limit of expansion.

Little children cannot safely go distances to reach the faraway playground or park. So I am strongly in favor of local recreation areas in residential sections, where mothers busy with housework may be assured their boys and girls are safe both going and coming home.

Why are city boards so intense on projects of municipal improvement and bureaucratic hobbies, that they cannot turn their eyes toward side-ways to this crying need of our little children?

A Book a Day
By Bruce Catton
and So Love Healed Their Hurts at Last

Spring has come, and with it, Mr. Warwick Deeping, strewing roses on the grass.

"Blind Man's Year" is the latest production of that prolific English writer.

Rosamund Gerard was an unusually successful novelist, but she shut herself away from the world for a mysterious reason, known only to those closest to her. The reason was a disfiguring birthmark, of which she was overwhelmingly conscious. Just how her two disagreeably gossipy sisters refrained from spreading the secret is not revealed. In any case she remained an enigma to her public, and lived alone on her beautiful estate in Sussex.

Life crashed in upon her seclusion when the palme of Olive Strange was wrecked near her home. She took him in and nursed him herself, full of pity at his injuries, moved to deeper compassion when she learned he would be blind as a result of his accident.

There is no need to guess what happened next. When you reach that point in the story you realize with dreary certainty the outcome. Their beautiful friendship ripens (that is precisely the word) into love, which, as is to be expected, conquers all.

If there is anything to be said for this book it is that Mr. Deeping shows a commendable compassion for the afflicted. This does not seem, however, a sufficiently unique sentiment to lift the book into mediocrity.—E. M. T.

One Garden

Tops of trees against the sky,
Solitude, a firefly;
Tiny breezes floating by,
All these in my garden.
Grass that covers up my feet,
Scent of roses, faint and sweet,
Hollyhocks that nodding meet;
These are in my garden.
Stars that stare so silently,
Stars that only wish to be
Soft, pale lanterns lighting me
Down here in my garden.
More of beauty, new and old,
More of witchery untold,
More is here than heart can hold,
Here, within my garden.—Selected.

Funeral Services for Ozan Woman

Mrs. Maggie Goodlett Is Buried Wednesday in St. Paul Cemetery

OZAN, Ark. — (Special) — Funeral services for Mrs. Maggie Goodlett, 75, wife of Ed Goodlett, were held at the St. Paul church, Wednesday at 11 a. m. The Rev. Walter Nelson, of Mineral Springs, and the Rev. G. W. Robertson, pastor in charge, officiated.

Mrs. Goodlett was a life-long member of the St. Paul community. She was a faithful worker in the Methodist church, and an influential character in her community.

Mrs. Goodlett had been ill for over a year, having been confined to her bed for several months. She fell several days before she died and dislocated her hip. Her death, though sudden, was not unexpected.

A host of friends and relatives attended her funeral and paid their last tribute to her with beautiful floral offerings.

Mrs. Goodlett is survived by her husband and an adopted daughter, Mrs. Ernest Allen.

George S. Smith III

Upon entering his truck, Thursday morning, to go to his farm, George S. Smith, prominent farmer and retired merchant of Ozan, was suddenly stricken ill. The cause was unknown at the time of the report. Mr. Smith was unable to lie down after being taken into the house. A doctor was summoned immediately. Mr. Smith has not been well for some time.

Meeting Postponed

The Methodist Missionary Society did not meet Tuesday afternoon because of the death of Mrs. Ed Goodlett.

Stock Is Suffering

Stock in the fields are suffering from the intense heat. H. P. Robertson, lost a fine mule, Wednesday, from exhaustion caused by getting too hot. Both B. M. Stuart and Charlie Irvin have a mule near death.

Those laborers working in the fields are urged to not work the stock too hard. A few minutes rest at the end of each few rows is very beneficial to both the men and the stock.

The rainy weather has caused the crops to be late and many of the fields are grown up in weeds and grass. All of the local farmers are making a hard effort to clean the crops before another rain.

Personals

Earl Robins, rural mail carrier, is spending his vacation at home. His father, Elbert Robins, is serving as assistant mail carrier.

Mrs. W. M. Sparks has been very ill for the past few days.

Musical Program for Ozan on Tuesday Night

SUPERSTITION MOUNTAIN

He was a flash of color. His sombrero was white and his serape was crimson; both were etched with gold. He leaned with artistic indolence against the hotel wall.

—gold—that's different! Adventure! Fun! Stuart came striding across the lobby now to join his sister and father.

"Everything's set," he announced. "Superstition Lodge, right at the base of the mountain. Four rooms reserved. Bingo kid—" he slapped Nina's arm—"we're going wild and woolly! With a gross of six shooters and—and a—"

Nina smirked elaborately. "That's just it, old tough-and-terrible. You can't even speak the language. Just a penthouse pal, you are. What'll you do when an Indian pokes his head around a rock and growls BOO?"

Stuart grinned. Nina couldn't help smiling back at the handsome bum, she told herself; he always beamed with some kind of enthusiasm.

FOR 55 years the firm of L. Potter and Sons in Phoenix has owned the same life-sized bronze statue of a horse, and has kept the poor critter outside in the elements every hour of that time.

Old Lemuel Potter paid twice its cost to have the horse wagoned across the desert and bolted to the top of his first saddle and harness store. It has out-lasted Lem, Mrs. Len and four sons. "It has nicks from bullets of carous-ing cowboys; one ear was shot half off in the midnight celebration on December 31, 1890-1900. Fred Potter, last of the sons, has had sentiment and sense enough to let it remain on the roof of even the modern Potter store.

Old timers still gravitate to Potter's as inevitably as they come to town; at some of their yarns Fred has laughed tactfully at least a thousand times. He was a polite audience this morning when the talk was all about mining.

He himself was more than usually interested in the powwow about Superstition Mountain's gold. Indeed, who isn't interested in a murder mystery, especially one where hidden treasure is the most titivating force? And the papers had been full of it lately.

The front of the store did a heavy "dude" trade now, catering to tourists who wanted to go western, in costume at least. Fred could get fancy prices from them. Back around the L. in the store, though, was a different atmosphere. The old clock stove still functioned there in winter. There the atmosphere eternally commingled of the flavor of leather, tobacco, human sweat, and conversation. Fred liked this part of his store better. He liked the humbler customers who gathered there.

"COLTER'S my name," one bewhiskered arrival had just introduced himself. "This here's my wife, Them's my sons, Paul and Silas. And this here—" (spoken proudly) "is our Carolee."

"Pleased 't'meetcha," said Fred

Potter, who would have said "How do you do?" up front.

"We're from West Texas," Mr. Colter went on. "We seen the horse on yore roof, and I says to m'wife, this here's a friendly store."

Fred Potter beamed. "Thank you, sir. You're welcome here. We do try to make friends. Set down. Set down, all of you. No hurry about down' business here. You fignering on taking up farming out here, Mr. Colter?"

The old gentleman's expression became serious. He was poorly clad. His family was obviously touched by poverty. In the bearing of both father and sons one read the unmistakable evidences of an honest but buffeted people. Paul Colter held a long rifle. He could have been 18, or maybe more, and Silas was his somewhat sullen looking twin. In the sister, however, was a facial contradiction—maybe it was pride, or determination—certainly it was backed by inherent beauty.

"We ain't farming no more," the old man confided. "I hev got a map to a rich mine. I bought it off a feller. We went busted farming, four years in a row. I done some mining once. I can do 'er again. With this here map I might make m'self rich! Who knows?"

His concluding tone seemed to dare Fred to dispute it.

Parker, Son Guilty in Wendel Case

Detectives Convicted of Forcing Lindbergh "Confession"

NEWARK, N. J.—(P)—Ellis H. Parker and his son were convicted by a federal court jury Wednesday night of conspiracy in the abduction of Paul H. Wendel with a recommendation for leniency.

Just before returning the verdict in the case which grew out of the Lindbergh kidnapping, the jury had asked Federal Judge Clark whether it could convict with a leniency recommendation. He gave an affirmative answer and added that "such a recommendation would have great weight with the court."

The senior Parker, 55, and chief of Burlington county detectives, and his son, Ellis Jr., 26, were charged under the so-called Lindbergh law with conspiring to abduct Wendel, a former Trenton lawyer, and obtain from him by force a confession to the Lindbergh kidnapping. The confession, produced almost on the eve of Bruno Richard Hauptmann's execution, delayed the latter for 72 hours but was repudiated and discredited by authorities.

Libel Suit Filed Against Democrat

N. W. Page Sues Newspaper and C. C. Westernman, Hope Correspondent

N. W. Page, Hope meat market operator, has filed a damage suit against the Arkansas Democrat Publishing company of Little Rock, publisher of the Arkansas Democrat, and its Hope correspondent, C. C. Westernman, in the amount of $10,000.

The suit arose from publication of an article in the Democrat which also plaintiff charged "exposed the plain-fits to public hatred, contempt and ridicule, and damaged his reputation."

The article referred to in the suit grew out of Hempstead circuit court proceedings on or about July 23 of last year.

WHERE BELGIUM'S GULDERS MET

IN the spacious banquet room of the ancient Town Hall in Brussels, aged Gobelin tapestries cover the oak-paneled walls. From these gaze the stern faces of the great heroes of Belgium, while still an occasional feast is spread in honor of a new hero.

The Town Hall of Brussels is one of the oldest and most impressive in Europe. It borders the great square which used to be the center of life for centuries past. The structure was almost destroyed when the city was bombarded by the army of Louis XIV in 1695, but it was repaired and now is a fine model of medieval architecture.

In this building, the powerful guilds of Belgium used to meet, and here wealthy leaders of the community entertained the royalty of foreign lands. Its highly ornamented ceiling always was regarded as a showpiece of Europe.

The Town Hall appears on a special delivery stamp issued by Belgium in 1929.

Poindexter Beats Smokies Again, 4-1

Victory Enables Travelers to Tightly Hold on First Place

LITTLE ROCK — (P) — Jennings Poindexter bested Ed Chapman in a hurling duel here Wednesday night, giving Little Rock a 4-1 victory over Knoxville and tightening the Travelers' hold on first place in the Southern Association.

Chapman blanked the Pebs for seven frames but Graham's single in the eighth, followed by Nonnenkamp's triple broke the ice and the Rocks made four hits count for four runs.

The Smokies' attempt to rally in the ninth fizzled.

Outstanding in the Knoxville defensive was Russell, rookie shortstop. Investigation disclosed that he is Lloyd Russell, the famous crooning halfback of the Southwest Conference, who starred for Baylor University for the last three years. Lloyd can bound that ball going to his left but looks a little weak when running to his right. But he's impressive for a rookie. He got two hits in five official trips to the plate.

The Travelers open a four-game series with the Nashville Vols at 8:15 Thursday night. Bob Porter, the Lake City righthander is Dr. Prothro's selection to open against the slugging Middle Tennesseeans.

A Pitcher's Battle
ATLANTA — (P) — Atlanta ousted Birmingham for third place in the association standings Wednesday, defeating the Barons by virtue of a third inning hitting streak 3-2.

Larry Miller, following up a 3-hit pitching performance in his last start against the New Orleans Pelicans—limited the Barons to four blows and scored a run himself.

Joiner hurled a 7-hitter for Birmingham and struck out two.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(P)—The Chicks broke even with the Nashville Vols in a double header Wednesday, winning the first game 6-1 and losing the nightcap 2 to 5, but they uncovered a sensational hitter in third baseman Bill McWilliams who made his debut in the Southern league Tuesday night.

McWilliams collected three hits Tuesday night in three times at bat, and in his first five official trips to

MIND Your MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usages by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Should anyone but a relative or an intimate friend be asked to act as godmother or godfather?
 2. Is it customary to invite a great number of people to a christening?
 3. May a baby's christening dress have touches of pink or blue on it?
 4. How should guests at a christening dress?
 5. Does each of the godparents give the baby a gift?
- What would you do if—
An intimate friend asks you to be godmother to her baby and you would rather not undertake the responsibility—
(a) Thank her for asking you but say that you feel it is too great a responsibility?
(b) Say, "Yes, I'll be a godmother, but I'm sure you have other friends who could do more for the baby?"
(c) Accept the responsibility graciously?

- Answers
1. No.
2. No.
3. No, at a christening everything the baby wears is white.
4. As they would for an afternoon tea.
5. Yes, either before the christening or on that day.

Their Army Jobs
WASHINGTON.—(P)—Wireless has displaced the navy's gallant homing pigeons, but army officers say the winged messengers probably will have a place forever in land warfare.

"They can be used where radio would disclose the position of an isolated body of troops," says Capt. W. R. Minckler of the signal corps, which maintains 1,100 trained pigeons at Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Minckler says over 500,000 pigeons took part in the World war.

Torrance Scores 1-Round Knockout

20 Minutes Required for Giant Louisianan to Score Victory

ELIZABETH, N. J.—(P)—It took Jack Torrance, former Olympic track star, now boxer, nearly 20 minutes Wednesday night to score a "one-round" knockout over Al Pekunis of Elizabeth in a welter bout which saw the Giant Louisianan floor twice. The end came officially at 2:41 of the first round. But here's what happened: Pekunis, 196, came out swinging and dropped his 240-pound opponent within a few seconds. Torrance got up at the four-count and was dropped again.

Referee Jim Manley ruled Torrance had been hit while sitting on the floor and gave him a five-minute rest. They began again and Torrance floored Pekunis.

Manley ruled the blow was low and gave Pekunis a five-minute rest. They resumed and down went Pekunis. He claimed a low blow. A debate in the center of the ring followed and Manley awarded Pekunis another five-minute rest. They started again, and Torrance dropped Pekunis. Manley declared fair and the "fight" was over.

German Papers Continue
BERLIN.—(P)—German sports papers viewed James J. Braddock's defeat by Joe Louis with sardonic satisfaction Wednesday.

It was the consensus of the papers that the man who "dodged" a fair fight with Max Schmeling got what he deserved from Louis. Indignation ran high in some papers which pointed out that a negro already decisively defeated by Schmeling is calling himself the world champion.

The Nachtausgabe said such a condition was an indication of the "depths" to which sport in America has descended. It emphasized that the forthcoming Farr-Schmeling bout will be the real test of world championship caliber.

National Capital Is Unfriendly to 3rd Term "Hint"

But Gov. Earle Says He Spoke Without F. D. R.'s Consent

DEMOCRATS DIVIDE

Burke, Nebraska, Recalls Tradition Established by Washington

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Little was discussed among members of congress here Wednesday night except Thursday's statement of Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania that he favors re-electing President Roosevelt to a third term.

The White House refused to comment on Earle's statement but immediately opposition was expressed by several senators and representatives, including some Democrats.

Representative Kennedy, Democrat of New Jersey, approved the suggestion. He said: "I don't know any individual who would make a better president for a third term than Mr. Roosevelt."

Some members of congress expressed gratification that the matter has come out into the open at last.

Some political commentators have said that the increasing opposition among Democrats in congress to measures advocated by Mr. Roosevelt has been inspired partially at least, by fear that he is planning to run for a third time.

There was some belief that Governor Earle's statement was made with the president's approval and that it is intended as a "trial balloon."

President Won't Be Broken

Most outspoken of those willing to be quoted on Earle's statement was Senator Burke (Dem., Neb.), one of the Democratic leaders of the fight against Roosevelt's plan to reorganize the Supreme Court. Burke commented that "many precedents have been broken of late but this one (the precedent established by George Washington against a third term for presidents) will not be broken."

He said the president had given assurance that he would retire after his present, second term. Burke evidently referred to a speech delivered by the president at a "victory dinner" of party leaders last March. Mr. Roosevelt said on that occasion that he recently had had a talk with a distinguished member of congress, and had told him: "My great ambition on January 20, 1941, is to turn over this desk and chair in the White House to my successor, whoever he may be, with the assurance that I am at the same time turning over to him as president, a nation intact, a nation at peace, a nation prosperous."

Brunette Suzanne Tries Movie Fame Recipe--- She Just Lets 'Dumbbells' Carve Her a Career

By PAUL HARRISON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD.—ne of the cuties you'll see doing a dumbbell routine—with real dumbbells, I mean—in "Double or Nothing" is a girl named Suzanne Ridgeway.

She's a brunet and glad of it, because she says she always has heard that blondes are not so smart. She believes that girls who bleach their dark hair are likely to bleach their brains at the same time.

Suzanne knew a girl like that once. "And was she ever crazy!" exclaimed Miss Ridgeway. "Why, she had to go to the psychology ward."

Suzanne says she was born in Paris. "Paris, France," she explains. "I'm not really French. I just happened to be born there because my mother was there at the time. Mr. Prinz (Leroy Prinz, Paramount dance director) says he looked up my history and I was born under the Arc de Triomphe, and I guess that's right."

In providing personal data for membership in the Junior Guild, Miss Ridgeway stated that she is French and Spanish on her mother's side and English on her stepfather's side.

She is interested in recent British affairs because she says they're just like a movie. One day she commented to Russell Patterson that she had listened to the coronation on the radio. "And was it ever thrilling!" she said. "And you know?—I never had heard it before."

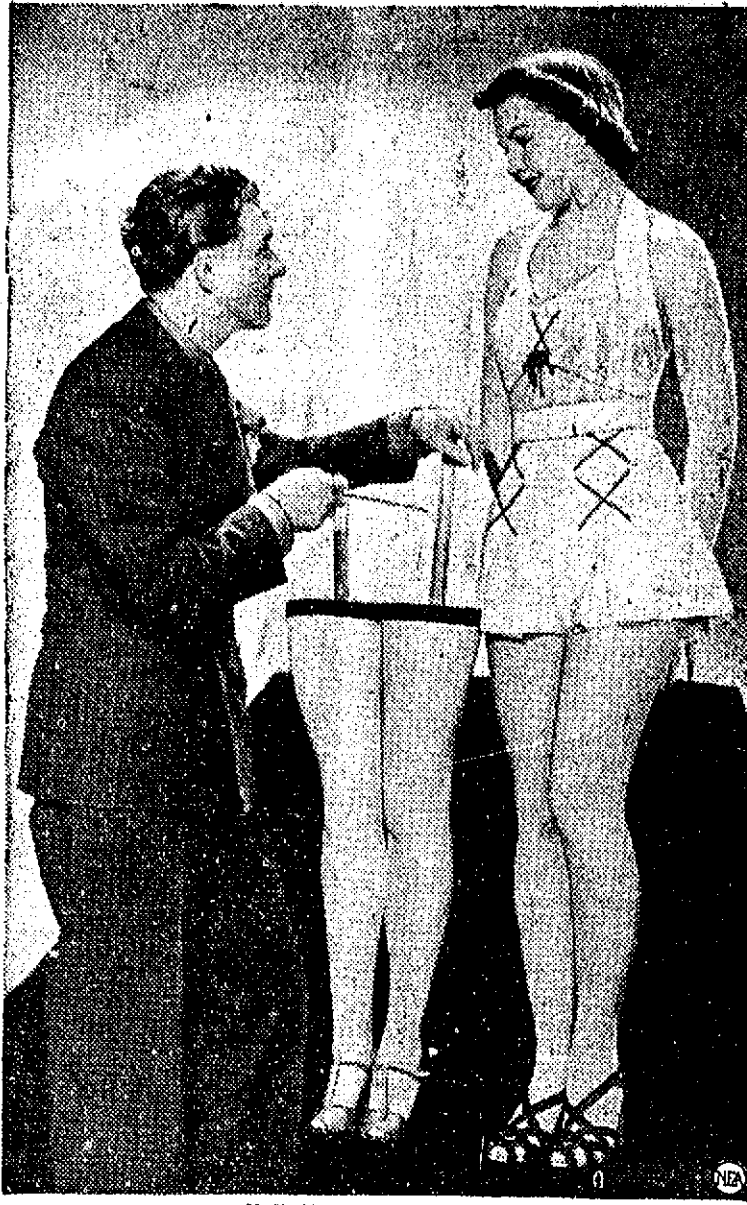

"Huh," asked Patterson. "What-daya mean?"

"I mean I missed that program last year."

Spurned Lead Roles

Suzanne went to Mr. Prinz several months ago for a job, but he didn't have one just then. So she got on a radio program by winning a contest for a dumbbell role—and I don't mean real dumbbells this time—and somebody sent her to Warner Brothers for a screen test.

She took the test, but went right back to Mr. Prinz. She said, "You've got first chance at hiring me, because I came to you first. And anyway I they said they were only make-up men.

So before every shot Suzanne would imperiously demand their services, and they'd all gather 'round and contribute a few thousand dollars' worth of retouching to other features.

Later she found out that they also painted pictures, and she thought that was a very nice hobby for make-up men. She was delighted, too, with Patterson's marionettes, and every morning she'd ask, "How is your puppet story?"

During the weeks of rehearsals, Prinz found it was necessary to tie a handkerchief to Miss Ridgeway's left wrist to identify her left hand. She explained that she never could remember right or left because she is ambidextrous.

She likes being in the ochrus all right, but some day real soon she wants to be a great actress, "either a comedienne or aprima donna." It is unlikely, though, that Prinz will release her without protest. His days have been so much brighter since the coming of Suzanne.

700 Looked Perfect

Russell Patterson is learning a lot about cinemaid. Never imagined they could be so purposeful and beautiful. Eight hundred answered the first casting call for "Artists and Models," and 25 were chosen. "Seven hundred looked practically perfect to me," he said.

Fortunately, he didn't have to make the final selections. But the time came when he needed a model for his drawings and sculpturings of puppets for the screen revue. Leroy Prinz selected 50 girls for his inspection, but he accepted the first one sent into his office. A red-head named Betty Dolson.

He said: "While she was posing, I noticed a trace of a scar on her nose and asked if she'd had it remodeled. She said well, not exactly, but she had taken a bad spill from a jumping horse. Then there was a scar on one of her wrists. She said that came from a smashup with a car."

"One day I thought I noticed that she walked with a very slight limp. I asked if she had a game knee. She said no. It was her left hip, because a week or so before she had jumped out of an airplane and the parachute landed her pretty hard."

"Then I found out that this girl—an unusually pretty girl whose face and figure would be her fortune anywhere else in the world—has been doubling

Mexico to Take Railroad Control

Will Purchase Interests of U. S. and Other Foreign Investors

MEXICO CITY—(AP)—President Lazaro Cardenas Wednesday night announced the government will expropriate the National Railways of Mexico. The railways, said a presidential decree to be published Thursday will be administered by a new federal department to be appointed.

The new department will be empowered to reorganize the railways and put them on a profitable basis. The government will reimburse United States and other foreign bondholders after a valuation of the expropriated properties. Inventory of the property will be under supervision of the Treasury Department, which will determine the amount to be paid to foreign investors.

The railways have been under operation by the government, which now holds more than half the capital stock. The new nationalization project is another in Mexico's program, begun first with expropriation of agricultural land to be allotted to peasants. The oil industry also has been subjected to a measure of nationalization.

President Cardenas' administration has distributed 11,200,000 acres of farm land to the peasantry since 1934, and in previous years other administrations allotted 21,250,000 acres to further the nationalization program.

Sweden has 12,057 university students, of whom 3,360 attend the University of Upsala, oldest and largest institution of its kind in the country.

don't want to be a leading lady just now. I think it would be better to start as a chorus girl and work up."

He hired her and put her in the chorus of "Artists and Models." On the set she met a group of men including Patterson, McClelland Barclay, Peter Arno and Jefferson Machamer. She asked whether they danced or sang or acted or what, and settles, assistant Republican leader in the House: "Republicans should welcome a third term candidacy as it would make certain a Republican victory in 1940. As a dangerous precedent, however, I would not like to see it attempted."

Representative Maverick (Dem., Tex.): "There are enough decent, progressive men in our party to get one to run in 1940."

Senator Wheeler (Dem., Mont.): "He (Earle) reminds me of John Alden. Why doesn't he speak for himself?"

Representative Eaton (Rep., N. J.): Governor Earle seems to have just discovered what is believed by a majority of the intelligent people of this country, namely that Mr. Roosevelt had it in mind to succeed himself in 1940."

Senator Davis (Rep., Pa.): "A great French scholar once said that language was to conceal thought."

Disclaims Personal Desire

Governor Earle, who called out troops in the steel strike a few days ago, told newsmen he was getting tired of reports that his actions were due to a personal desire for the presidency.

"Between the third-term precedent and the welfare of the country," he asked, "can any patriotic citizen hesitate as to what course he will take? I am for Franklin D. Roosevelt for president in 1940, unqualifiedly and finally."

The governor said he never had discussed the matter with the president, and that he spoke without his permission.
